Despite the fact that Roblox has commonly gotten positive surveys from pundits, it has confronted analysis for its substance, talk filtration framework, and micro- transactions.

That might have been just legal manoeuvring, but the question will eventually arise: who gets to decide what appears on the Metaverse? Given Roblox's significant audience of under-13s, the company is understandably keen on safety, employing over 3,000 people around the world to screen for inappropriate content. I appreciate that reading this may make Roblox sound like a scary place for your kids to spend their digital time in but rest assured this is not the case. If you follow the steps above and educate your kids on how to stay safe and let you know when something isn't right, they will have a great time playing any of the games on the platform. There are, however, a few easy things you can do to minimise the risk. First off, as mentioned above, don't tell your kid the password to their Roblox account. The reason behind this is the 'free Robux' scams that proliferate the internet. These sites get your details by disguising themselves as sites that look like an official Roblox page and encourage people to log into their Roblox account via their page to claim 'free Robux'. If you do this you have just given the scammers all of the information they need to take over the account and clear it out. No matter how tempting these sites are you need to know that there is NO SUCH THING AS FREE ROBUX. Only purchase Robux using the methods mentioned before.
